

Nobuaki Miyakawa Biography

Honda Research Institute

Nobuaki Miyakawa joined Honda R&D in 2001 and has been working on the development of process and design technology for 3D stacking devices at Honda Research Institute, Japan since 2003. He previously worked with Hitachi, Intel, Fuji and Xerox. His interests include display devices, optical detectors, mixed analogue and digital LSIs, multi-computer systems for the analysis of massive many-body problem and Brain-like computer.

Miyakawa received the BS degree in Electrical Engineering from Muroran Institute of Technology, Muroran, Japan, in 1969.