Who Forecasted Correctly?

We all know now that 2010 came in as a 34% growth year. But what were forecasters saying at the beginning of 2010?

Take a bow, Future Horizons who, on January 27th 2010 predicted 'at least' 22% growth for the year with a high-end possibility of 31%.

iSuppli said 21.5%; Semiconductor Intelligence said 22%; Semico said 20%; Gartner said 20% (in February). A round of applause.

Not too shabby were VLSI Research on 17%, Morris Chang at 18%; IC Insights on 15%, and Carnegie ASA on 15%.

The dunces were the two most 'official' forecasters: WSTS on 12% and the SIA on 10.2%.
